I create a python script and I have to execute this python script in order to copy and compare the 2 databases. when i execute the script i have this error : DatabaseError: Error 'Access denied for user 'root'@'localhost' (using password: YES)' while connecting to MySQL server I have no idea what the problem is, I suspect that the copy is not good because the user root@localhost does not exist in the database. I try also by connecting with different database just with the same error So what should I do? The script only need to copy the database and I do not need to create any table (or add anything) but i still have this error. A: The error makes sense to me, since you are trying to connect to a MySQL database in the same MySQL database which you are executing the script from. You could write a program which connects to your MySQL database, gets a list of databases with `mysql_list_databases()` and executes `mysql_select_db()` and `mysql_drop_db()` for each database in the list.

When it comes to turning around the fortunes of her students' grades, Esther David (left) knows that early intervention is crucial. If her students' marks sink, her job as Head of Sport at the Ysgol Dyffryn Târfa school is to intervene immediately. But not everyone can be trained to help, and Esther knows just how important it is to be prepared for any eventuality. As the most senior member of Ysgol Dyffryn Târfa's teaching team, she has the power to appoint the school's role of Resilience Co-ordinator, who oversees the school's resilience planning, and the Headteacher's "strength and resilience policy", in which the school's approach to mental health is outlined. The school takes it in turns to host mental health training for school staff and also runs a 'mad week', in which all staff participate in a day of activities designed to help teachers support students experiencing mental health problems. In other words, if you work at the school, and need help – when times are tough, or if your mental health is struggling – you won't be in the dark. Esther believes that early intervention and appropriate help for those who need it, is essential – and has been using Sport England's anti-bullying work with young people in schools as a model for the Ysgol Dyffryn Târfa
